

Wes Jackson is Senior Vice President, Commercial Finance and Productivity, where he is responsible for defining and executing the commercial finance and productivity initiatives as part of the broader commercial transformation. He leads the commercial finance, business transformation, inside sales, master data management, and commercial intelligence teams and earlier this year took on new responsibility for company-wide revenue management.

Wes joined RNDC in 2016 as the State Sales Finance Director for Georgia. His progressive career has led to the role of Director, Finance Analytics and Insight and Vice President, Business Transformation and Productivity. In the latter role, he led the Shared Sales Services team. During the last few years, Wes led various strategic initiatives driving synergy and preparing the organization for the ERP modernization program. Prior to joining RNDC, Wes held roles in finance and IT with Diageo and PepsiCo. He holds undergraduate degrees in Mathematics and Philosophy from Piedmont University and an MBA from the Georgia Institute of Technology.

Wes has a passion for exploring new foods, cooking, experiencing new cultures, and watching his favorite sports teams, the Atlanta Falcons and Tottenham Hotspur. He lives in Saratoga Springs, N.Y. with his wife, Michelle, and their two daughters in Saratoga Springs.
